THOUSANDS PREPARE TO FLEE FLOOD

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Los Angeles insists on staying in the news column. First it was a new investigation of the Taylor murder. Then the old standby that is dusted off whenever news grows scarce was brought off again—"new Aimee probe." And now even the Julian Oil probe is again in the limelight. Anything to keep the public mind off the weather down there at present.

Blood is thicker than water or something like that. But try to figure out this one.

Mike Perea of Oklahoma city first wed Mrs. Lucille Platte and welcomed into his family her 17-year-old daughter, Juanita. He later divorced his first wife and made her his mother-in-law by wedding the daughter, Juanita. In the midst of this confused relationship, Mike died. He left a $250,000 oil estate to Juanita.

The mother filed suit for the estate, claiming Mike had not divorced her finally before his second marriage. Today, the court sought to heal broken family ties and awarded mother and daughter an equal share.

Each indicated, however, she would continue a fight for all or none.

Representative Lankford, democrat of Georgia introduced a bill in Congress which would close all motion picture houses in the nation on Sundays. The law would also ban legitimate plays on Sunday. But then he has tried the same thing several times before.

There are a number of motion pictures going the rounds reputing to show life as it is in the newspaper editorial office and also in the armed services of the nation. We have a sneaking idea that some of these are merely to get before the public scenes and words which would not be permitted in the ordinary run of pictures. And as for their description of things as they are—well write your own ticket.

L. A. Starts War On Loud Noises

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—UP—A new law designed to make Los Angeles county less noisy has been adopted by the county supervisors. The ordinance provided punishment as a misdemeanor for anyone found guilty of "indiscriminately" discharging firearms in the thickly populated districts adjacent to cities and towns in Los Angeles.

MAN TAKEN IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 20 —Suspected as the man who murdered an eastbay motorist and assaulted his girl companion Benny Ledford, a negro, is being held in Sacramento tonight. Ledford was captured after he had seriously wounded a grocer in an attempted holdup.

Ledford is said by police to be a heavyweight pugilist and ex-convict.

His description was rushed to Sheriff Burton Becker of Alameda county in an attempt to identify him as the man who beat Nick Tralla, Livermore restaurant man to death and assaulted El'a Hibbs 22, of Livermore, last Friday.

The negro entered the grocery store of George Anastasion, 400 O street today. With a mask covering his face, he pointed a gun at the grocer and ordered him to give him his money.

Believing that it was a practical joke, Anastasion lighted a cigar. The bandit fired one shot, hitting the grocer in the head, and then fled. Before he collapsed, the wounded man summoned aid.

Ledford was found by police hiding in a lumber yard.

The pistol used in the shooting is said by police to be the one taken from John Keenan, Grand Hotel watchman, who was beaten and robbed by a negro on Jan. 15.

Police declare that Ledford's description tallies with that broad cast by Alameda authorities.

EL CERRITO IN WAR AGAINST OLD 'SHACKS'

An effort to clean up their city by condemning the unoccupied shacks will be made by the city council of El Cerrito according to its action Monday night when it appointed chief of the fire department Arthur Byrd and Building Inspector H. E. Wood to make a survey in El Cerrito of the "shacks."

Councilman Peter Larsen who brought the subject before the council stated that there were numerous unoccupied shacks which were not only unsightly and a fire hazard but were used for housing purposes by tramps, and should be condemned.

After the survey is made it will be submitted to City Attorney J. H. Peters who will advise what steps to take to eliminate the shacks.

FIVE POWER NAVY MEET OPENS TODAY IN LONDON

—LONDON, Jan. 20.—UP—The Five-Power Naval conference of 1930 designed to limit navies, substitute peace for rivarly and take a load off taxpayers' backs, began unofficially today and tonight with four meetings of the delegates.

Although the sessions will not open formally until King George, in the glare of arc lights and before a radio microphone, delivers a welcome in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords at 11 a. m. Tuesday, the delegates agreed today on preliminary details.

Tonight, at a government banquet at the Savoy hotel, they received the assurance of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson that the United States entered the conference with free hands and a sincere desire to satisfy everyone.

Toast Offered

Stimson joined others at the banquet in raising his lips to rare port of 1904 vintage when separate toasts were given to King George, President Hoover, President Doumergue of France, Emperor Hirohito of Japan and King Victor Emanuel of Italy.

All the delegates and advisers—some 450 altogether—arose for the toasts and for the time being, at least, forgot national differences. During the earlier cocktail session preceding the dinner all the American delegates carefully refrained from drinking.

Close Seen

In his speech as chairman, MacDonald indicated a belief the conference could be brought to a speedy close.

"We have held our first conference," he said. "If all the delegates behave in the next six weeks as they behaved today, the six weeks will be the happiest and most harmonious I have ever had in my life."

Then, turning to Stimson, he said:

Lauds U. S.

"The United States is far away, yet very near at hand. In geography we must look far, but in the light of morals, the United States is at our elbows. The United States has been leading every peace movement of modern times. It gave us the Washington naval conference and the Kellogg pact. It supplied the impulse of idealism with which we will open

3 PERILED BY AMMONIA FUMES

Amonia pipes bursting in the butcher shops of the McMarr store in the Mueller building at Tenth street and Macdonald avenue yesterday, threatened the lives of two dentists and a nurse in their offices above the store. An alarm brought the Richmond fire department to the scene, and the three were rescued as they were on he verge of asphyxiation.

Those rescued by the department were: Dr. C. J. Farlinger, of Richmond; Dr. Francis Kent of Richmond, and his nurse, Miss Ruth McKenzie of Hercules.

The fumes were first noticed by Dr. Kent, who started down the hall to warn Dr. Farlinger. Almost overcome by the fumes, Kent, re-entered his office, and called Farlinger on the telephone.

Nearly Collapses

Dr. Farlinger managed to escape down the hall and almost collapsed in the arms of bystanders.

Miss McKenzie and Dr. Kent were trapped in the doctor's office, and were nearly overcome when firemen arrived on the scene.

A gas mask was placed on the nurse, and firemen carried her to safety.

Dr. Kent was taken down a ladder from an outside window.

Alarm Sounded

A patient of Dr. Kent, Mrs. McDonald, was one of the first to notice the fumes and sound the alarm. She had attempted to enter the building, and was forced back by the fumes.

The two dentists and the nurse as far as is known, were the only occupants of the building at the time.

Will Robenson, local attorney who has his offices in the building, was out at lunch, and Dr. Farlinger's nurse Mrs. Emma Kilpatrick had left ten minutes previous to go to the bank.

The fumes were not apparent in the McMarr store although Conn's drug store was flooded with the gas for a time.

It is not known what caused the pipes to burst.

RICKS HEARING CLOSED IN S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20. —Hearing of testimony in the rehearing of the application of C. A. "Cappy" Ricks Martinez realtor for the issuance of a 1930 broker's license was concluded today before Commissioner Fred Athearn.

The closing witness called by protestants against the issuance of a license of Ricks were M. J. Olstein, former Martinez businessman and official of the Niagra Insurance company and Schwabacher Frey company. Through an official of the insurance company, protestants against Ricks being given a license sought to establish that Ricks' commission in Martinez had been cancelled through alleged failure to turn in an insurance premium. Ricks denied the charge.

Testimony of the official of the Schwabacher-Frey concerned supplies the realtor had allegedly purchased from the concern.

It was indicated at the hearing that a "Ricks Defense" club had been organized among the friends of the realtors and that they have been aiding in financing his battle to obtain a 1930 license, it was staed.

Athearn has indicated that he will make public his decision on Jan. 24.

PROBES OPENED IN PLANE CRASH THAT COST LIVES OF 16

SAN CLEMENTE, Jan. 20.—UP—A board of veteran pilots today examined the blackened wreckage of the T. A. T. Maddux air liner which crashed and burned 10 miles south of here Sunday night with a loss of 16 lives.

The opinion that the pilot had encountered a sudden ocean squall and had attempted either to turn back toward San Diego or to land was expressed by D. W. Tomlinson, director of operations for the air line.

"I examined the wreckage closely and I found that Pilot Russell was making a left turn and had hooked his left wing on the ground," Tomlinson said.

Too Low For Turn

"Whether he wanted to go back toward San Diego or tried to land we probably will never know. He apparently had dropped so low that he did not have enough altitude to make the turn. The field was suitable for a landing."

Tomlinson said the Pilots' board would hold an open meeting in Glendale Tuesday morning and that all persons who had any information concerning the disaster would be questioned.

"We want newspaper men to attend," Tomlinson urged. "We have nothing to conceal and want everything known. This is just an unfortunate incident such as may occur in any form of transportation."

The blackened wreckage of the metal craft failed to reveal that there had been motor trouble, Tomlinson maintained.

Lindbergh Sees Wreck

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, an officer of T. A. T. Maddux, also viewed the wreckage today, but declined to comment or to say definitely what part, if any, he would take in the investigation.

The Pilots' association with Tomlinson in the hearing will be E. A. Belande, F. S. Whitney and S. D. Welch.

Tomlinson explained that he had questioned various witnesses of the tragedy already and that they told of the rainstorm which swept in from the Pacific ocean.

"We get such storms which take the place of thunderstorms in the east. There is heavy rain, low hanging clouds and dusty air. The storms are 20 to 30 miles in diameter. You may be flying alongside of one and it may suddenly close in and you lose altitude suddenly."

Rescue Efforts Told

Those who saw the air giant turn into a huge metal oven as they stood horrified, told today of their efforts to rescue those trapped in the cabin.

"When I got up to the plane it was a raging inferno," John Weston said. "I was hoping someone might be alive and could be saved. I pushed over some of the fuselage and took two men out of the fire, but they were badly burned then. I tried to rescue the two pilots, but the

BARRIER OF ICE DAMS RIVER

PALESTINE, Ill., Jan. 20.—UP—A growling ice gorge holding back the flood waters of the Wabash river, caused residents to prepare to flee for their lives here tonight.

The Wabash rushing in a flood swollen torrent down the Indiana-Illinois border started to pile up an ice barrier five miles above here yesterday. The ice gradually piled higher and higher until flow of the torrent almost was completel ystopped tonight.

The gorge began to grow shaky as the pressure behind it became stronger. Should the gorge collapse the whole of Palestine would be swept away by a solid wall of water some 30 feet deep.

Some 15 or 20 families already have been forced from their homes by the yellow back-water swirling from the barrier. Residents of Palestine and other towns below were prepared to abandon their homes precipitately should the ice give signs of being swept away.

Land owners along the Wabash on the Indiana sent appeals mean while to Governor Leslie at Indianapolis to rush a dynamite laden airplane so that the jam could be bombed from above. Efforts to blast the mountainous ridge of ice from its ends have failed.

Illinois Central railroad officials said that unless the jam is dissipated their bridge near Riverton, Ind., will be destroyed.

Mothers Must Give, But—

Gray-Haired Mother Gives Blood to Save Dying Gangster Son.—Headline

AND beneath this succinct summary many of our readers only the other day found the story of how the slight, gray-haired, blue-eyed mother of James McManus, Chicago gangster, lay beside him on the operating table and gave a pint of her blood that he might live. He had been picked up seriously wounded, after a mysterious street fight. He himself was carrying three guns and his pockets were heavy with pistol shells. "He has long been known to police as a gangster and hoodlum," the Chicago despatch said.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

His mother read of the shooting, went quietly to the hospital, discovered that her boy was in need of blood transfusion, and only then revealed her identity, pleading that, because she was his mother, she should offer her own blood to save his life.

There is probably no woman—certainly no mother—who read this pathetic true tale in the news without sympathy, without the swift inner knowledge that she would do, in like case, exactly what this Chicago mother has done. Of course she gave her blood for her son—hoodlum, gangster, gunman that he was. For still he was her son, the baby she had borne, nursed, taught, loved. Women understand that the blood she gave for him in the Chicago hospital was only the material symbol of the heart's blood of hopes and fears and agonized devotion she has given him for the thirty-two years he has lived.

MOTHERS are like that, and, on the whole, it's lucky they are—despite the damage that may be done by the overweening maternal love which develops a mother-fixation in its object. Mothers must give—the blood of their bodies, the work of their hands, the adoration of their hearts. Only—will you think us smug and unfeeling if we wonder whether there would be so many gangsters and other grown-up bad boys, if more mothers used their heads, as well as their hearts and hands, in bringing up children?

Naturally, we know nothing about how James McManus's mother brought him up. She may have been as wise as she was tender; he may have been one of those congenital black sheep which happen in the best-regulated families. But we have seen—so have you—more than one sweet, self-sacrificing "good" mother who is on the way to developing a young menace to the community and a man who will break her heart.

As the mother of a ready-made family, we are convinced that love—meaning emotional ardor, loyalty, self-denial—is not enough for bringing up a boy; or a girl either, for that matter. You simply have to have sense. And if you have sense, you realize that you must also have firmness, foresight, disciplinary standards and—above everything else—the Spartan resolution not to interfere with the operation of that old law, "Who breaks, pays." The sooner a child learns that he cannot escape the logical consequences of his acts, the less likelihood that society will teach the lesson to the grown man—with the aid of society's peculiarly unpleasant penal institutions.

IT'S these mothers who confuse love with weak indulgence who make so much trouble. A particularly admirable analysis of the type is contained in "Mothers Cry," the unusual novel of the new year by Helen Grace Carlisle. An intelligent woman, following this tragically realistic story of a mother, as told by herself, longs, in every other chapter, to demand of the narrator:

"But can't you see how you're spoiling your boy—can't you understand that you must control him, you mustn't lie for him and conceal his misdoings, you mustn't let him walk on you with hobnailed shoes? Don't you realize that you're making him worse, instead of better? Can't you never be firm—but only cond?"

For when the mother in Miss Carlisle's book is kicked by her naughty baby boy, Dan, and his father punishes him—"after that," she confides, "I made up my mind I must never tell Frank anything about Danny. So I tried to handle Danny myself afterward and it was hard because the only way I could do anything with him was by promising him things."

Even before he goes to school, Danny breaks the family phonograph in a fit of wild rage, because his mother doesn't give him a penny. In school he begins stealing from his mother's pocketbook, and when she reproaches him, he says that she ought to give him the money and then he wouldn't have to steal it. So she hides her pocketbook.

Here is only the beginning of her pernicious practice of weakly evading the issues he raises. When he gets old enough to refuse to go to school, she doesn't make him work—although she is supporting the whole family by her sewing. She continues to support the surly slacker, and to allow him to steal from her.

He goes from bad to worse, finally making the home so wretched that his younger sister runs away before she is through college. Often the mother who is fond but foolish sacrifices her decent children to the family pest—she has no sense of justice. Even when Dan, a grown man with a jail record, leaves home, he writes to his mother for money and she always sends it. And—as any non-sentimental person guesses—he is not reformed by "a mother's prayers, a mother's tears." Far from it. But he might, as a child, have been formed by the balanced functioning of a mother's mind and will power.

Mothers must give—but can they not give wisdom and strength, as well as love, to shaping the raw material of manhood and womanhood intrusted to them?

Although, of Course, "New York Is Not America!"

The next time anybody tries to tell us that the American is a money-making robot, with no interest in ideas, we shall remind him of the recent mobbing of the American Museum of Natural History by 3,500 New Yorkers, who wanted to see a free movie of the Einstein theory which only six persons in the world are supposed to understand.

An Office Tip

ONE girl gets all she possibly can out of her carbon papers. When she uses them several times the preparation becomes worn off in places while the rest of the carbon paper is in good condition. When this happens she holds the paper over the radiator (in front of the fire would work quicker) a few seconds. The heat causes the preparation to dissolve and spread evenly over the paper so that when dry the paper will have a new coating. This may be repeated, and she says by this method she has often doubled the life of the carbon paper.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

The land of cakes is the appellation Robert Burns gave to Scotland, and he might well have named winter, the season of cakes. Then as now, most likely, sociability reached its height during the cold months. Impromptu refreshments inevitably included cake.

NANCY DORRIS

Since wintry wind, snow or rain does not dampen the desire for a game of bridge or an informal dance, planned and spur-of-the-moment parties distinguish our winter season. Wise indeed is the hostess who keeps a fresh baked cake or two in her pantry ready to serve her guests.

As a compliment, however, the emergency cake may be rather unusual either in appearance or in flavor.

With perfect coffee no flavor is nicer than that of

Three-fourths cup butter
One cup of sugar
Three eggs, well beaten
Two cups pastry flour
One teaspoon soda
One teaspoon baking powder
One teaspoon cinnamon
One teaspoon allspice
One-half teaspoon nutmeg
One-half cup sour milk
Figs from 8-ounce can, cut
Oven temperature: 350 degrees F.
Baking time: one hour
Yield, one loaf

The figs drained well go into the spicy loaf and the syrup flavors the icing. Home-cooked figs may be used instead of the canned, the quantity of figs and syrup being eight ounces. Drain the figs well. Cut in pieces.

To make the loaf cake, work the butter to a cream in the mixing bowl and slowly add the sugar; when the two ingredients are blended, stir in the well beaten eggs. Place the pastry flour, soda, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice in the sifter and add to the butter-sugar-eggs alternately with the sour milk.

Fold the well-drained figs, which have been cut into pieces, into the cake batter and pour into a nicely greased loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees F.—for one hour. Remove from the oven, cool upon a rack and then cover with

One tablespoon lemon juice
One and one-half to two cups confectioner's sugar
One tablespoon melted butter
A few candied cherries

Pour the fig syrup into a deep bowl and add the lemon juice; stir in confectioner's sugar slowly until the mixture is of the right consistency to spread. Add the melted butter and spread the icing over the top and sides of the cool cake. Decorate with candied cherries.

WHAT CHIC YOUNG THINGS WILL WEAR

A FINELY smocked yoke and minute pleating characterize the dainty heliotrope crepe dress at left. The hat of heliotrope baqu is adorned with flesh-colored velvet bows. Rose sudanette makes the gay little dress at centre with the interest centred in the colorfully appliqued collar. A party dress of sheer white linen has the collar, sleeves and hem of rose linen. The embroidery motif and hem of strawberries are in natural colors.

Caring for the Normal Skin

THE normal skin, as we defined it in a previous article, is the skin that is neither dry nor oily, neither lined, flabby nor blemished, but "just right." The only problem it presents is the problem of keeping it just right—if not making it dazzlingly lovely.

© FRANCES OLIVIER

All too often, people blessed with normal skins leave them to the tender mercies of Nature, which are not always tender. Poor dear skins, they are dutifully washed and rouged and powdered and maybe occasionally creamed. But not a though is given to that far-off day (maybe not so far off either) when they will dry up and shrivel or coarsen perhaps or sag. Not a hoot cared about heightening their natural beauty with the right rouges and powders plus flattering make-up foundations.

Every skin, including the most beautiful specimen in the world, must be "lubricated" periodically to keep it waxen-smooth. By "lubricated" we mean treated with cream, of course. As to the kind of cream, a rich yet light-textured cream proves usually best in the case of a normal skin, which should be creamed thrice weekly.

Also, every skin demands regular patting and the occasional use of a suitable astringent to keep it firm and fine-grained. A mild astringent may be used daily on the normal skin, a strong astingent two or three times a week.

Now, as to accenting the natural beauty of a normal skin, high-grade make-up is the only sort that should be considered, a rule which happens to apply to all skins. Using rouges and powders which are harsh or coarse in texture serves ultimately to make the skin the same way.

Next in importance to texture is coloring in make-up. And a safe rule to follow here is this: choose powders a tone or two darker than the natural tone of the skin, rouge and lipstick a tone or two lighter than one's mouth and blushes.

Having decided on the kind of make-up, the next thing to be considered is the manner of its use, concerning which we have another old reliable rule to offer: to underdo the paint job is better than to overdo it, therefore be sparing in the use of rouge and lipstick.

Finally, to insure a lasting color scheme and one twice becoming, build your portrait upon a suitable make-up foundation, a cream or a lotion, whichever way your preference lies. For skins with the slightest tendency to pore troubles we are in favor of the lotion.

Try These

If the table oilcloth is accidentally cut, place a strip of adhesive tape underneath and press oilcloth down on it. If neatly done the mend will scarcely be visible.

Boccaccio in Church

One of Boccaccio's stories from the "Decameron," the tale about the faithful Griselda, is the curious subject of an altar cloth, according to a discovery by an architect when inspecting a Swedish church. In the late middle ages some German artist found the subject worth depicting on a wall-hanging in a Rhineland palace, and during the Thirty Years' War a Swedish Colonel found it interesting enough to adorn the church of his native Swedish parish, where it has remained ever since. Other finds in old Swedish churches are some finely embroidered prayer cushions. They were originally small flags, attached to silver trumpets, and were used on the occasion when, in 1613, the Prince-elector of the Palatinate married Anne, daughter of King James I. of England. After various adventures they were acquired by a Roman Catholic Bishop, and in 1633 at the capture of Wurzburg, a Swede by the name of Grubb obtained them and sent them to his parish church in the Province of Vestmanland. These discoveries have been made in the course of the national inventory of the property of the Swedish churches, which has brought to light a wealth of valuable antiquities and treasures of all kinds.

With an "Explainer"

In deepest Montmartre there is a cinema where they show American pictures with English titles and subtitles. In order to overcome this linguistic disadvantage for the benefit of the French clientele the establishment employs an "explicateur" (explainer). Apart from fixing a thirteen month year with the same weekday falling on the same date of each month, it is hoped to arrange for a permanent date for Easter, providing the consent of all the leading Christian churches of the world can be secured.

Almanach Gotha

Melancholy thoughts are aroused in aristocratic circles in Austria by the appearance of the new Almanach de Gotha. The place of honor has fallen to more exotic states; two years ago it was King Zog of Albania who occupied the place of honor, last year King Amanullah of Afghanistan, and this year King Fuad of Egypt. "Gotha" gives a short list of the very few Archdukes and Archduchesses of the House of Hapsburg who have renounced their rights and titles. They live in Austria, while the the others are banished, and bear the name of Mr., Mrs., or Miss Hapsburg-Lothringen. Among them are the former Archduchess Maria Theresa and the former Archdukes Joseph Ferdinand, Heinrich Ferdinand, and Franz Salvator with their families. There are eight pages of Turkish Princes and Princesses of the former House of Osman, but all are exiled, in Paris or on the Riviera. The Grand Duke Cyril appears as the head of the exiled House of Romanoff. There are many tragedies to be read between the lines of "Gotha," but one is unnoticed. Herr Zoubkoff still appears as the husband of the unhappy Princess Victoria of Schaumburg.

Good Manners

"WHO is that lady?" asked little Susie, as Joan's mother went into the house.

"Why, that's my mother," answered Joan. "She can't be your mother. She talks to you so polite," was Susie's decisive answer.

What an indictment of the adults in Susie's household! But aren't most grownups discourteous to little children? "Do this, do that," they say to the little ones. But let the children omit the "please" and then there's trouble. The best way to teach children good manners is to have them ourselves; and not to keep them locked away with the company silver, but to exhibit them every minute of the day, especially in our contacts with the children.

Parents very often make a great deal of fuss over the lip service of "How-de-do," "Please" and "Thank you." It seems to me far more important to put our emphasis on the child's attitude of consideration, thoughtfulness and gratitude. If the little one feels kindly disposed toward people, and if he is constantly exposed to a good example, these pleasing expressions will sooner or later come spontaneously.

Many children have had their appetites ruined by an over emphasis on table manners. Constant nagging rarely accomplishes anything. "Take your hand off the table." "Don't hold your glass like that." "Sit up straight." Fast and furious come the orders. They only confuse and antagonize the child and fill his soul with a horror of mealtime. Here, too, our example is the most potent influence. We may have to correct a child occasionally, but let us concentrate on one habit at a time and let us teach him rather than nag at him. Showing appreciation for effort and even slight improvement is always more expedient than fault finding.

Parents are very often worried at the bad manners children learn at school, at the playground or on the street. It seems to me that the influence of the home is always the most potent and the most lasting, and that all other influences, although they may have their day, must give way eventually.

Good manners should be the expression of right feelings. Let us cultivate these feelings and attitudes in our children and let us "do unto them as we would have them do unto us"—and others.

Modernistic Sweaters

WITH Schiaparelli as the originator, the most unusual slip-on sweater of the season is in solid color with a singular modernistic design. One model of black zephyr, laced at the waistline centre front, simulates the bib effect by a bold design in gray and white. The set-back theme of skyscraper inspiration seen last year appears in new guise this season to the further enhancement of slip-on decoration. One shoulder may be entirely plain while the other wears a part of the woven pattern which flashes across the front of the garment, terminating perchance at the opposite side.

"It should please her very much," said Miss Gilks.

"Let's see. Where was I?" asked Mr. Scratch. "Oh, yes. Now, for the Mississippi Valley I think it would be a good stunt to send another cold wave down there. I think I'll route this one from Montana through Denver, Omaha and Kansas City. The last one came down through Des Moines and Chicago, as I remember."

"No, you had the last cold wave originate in the Northwest and curve around through St. Paul, Detroit and Cincinnati," corrected Miss Gilks.

"Well, we'll eliminate the curves on this cold spell," said Mr. Scratch. "Sweep it down in a straight line from Montana to New Orleans. And for the rest of the country, give 'em slightly cooler. And you better throw in a few clouds over the Rocky Mountain district. They've had sunshine enough, I guess."

"Yes, sir," said Miss Gilks, taking down his order. "And what do you want to give California?"

"Oh, slip 'em a promise of rain. Make it light rains, though. I don't intend to give 'em a deluge till later on. Now I guess that cleans up the country, don't it?"

"Yes," said Miss Gilks.

"All right. Anything important in the morning mail?"

"A few complaints about the weather from New York and New Jersey."

"Oh, is that so?" said Mr. Scratch with a sneer. "Well, just for that I'll sock them with a sixty-mile gale for to-morrow. Put up storm warnings from Charleston, S. C., to Nantucket Island. No. Make that a seventy-mile gale. I'll show 'em who's running this weather."

"When do you want the gale to start?"

"Immediately — somewhere off the Bahamas. And have it strike the coast line some time around noon to-morrow. And then you might give them six inches of snow, followed by rain that'll make some nice slush. I'll show those knockers where they get off!"

FULL BEAUTY OF RIO RITA IN FILM PLAY

As Florenz Ziegfeld has "glorified" the American girl, so Radio Pictures glorifies Ziegfeld in it, superb spectacle of music, beauty and drama now playing at the Fox-California theater.

All the rich qualities which drew Broadway crowds for 62 consecutive weeks to the Ziegfeld theater have been retained in the film production and to these have been added mobility and magnitude which the stage, even under the direction of a Ziegfeld, could not hope to attain.

Against the most lavish sets yet seen on the screen is played and sung the magnificant drama of the Mexican borderland by Bebe Daniels and John Boles with a supporting cast of hundreds. Mighty vocal choruses, inspiring dance routines and beauty assemblies show for the first time the endless possibilities of the speaking screen.

In the huge cast are Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler, crack comedians of the original show; Don Alvarado, popular screen player; Dorothy Lee, flapper sensation of "Syncopation"; Helen Kaiser, Follies beauty; Georges Renevant, Tiny Sandford, Sam Nelson and Eva Rosita. More than a hundred glorious girls, the Pietro Cimini grand chorus of 80 male voices and the famed Radio Pictures symphony orchestra are among other features.

The whole of the second part of the production is filmed in technicolor aboard a sumptuously furnished galleon anchored in the Rio Grande.

In addition to "Rio Rita" "Following the Sun Around" "The Kinkajou" and other of the lovely melodies from the original show, two new songs are heard. These, also composed by Harry Tierney and Joe McCarthy, are "Sweetheart, We Need Each Other" and "You're Always in My Arms."

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN HOME BLAZE

TURLOCK, Jan. 20—(U.P.)—Two children, brother and sister, were burned to death today in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Jarvis.

The children were Lee Allen, 4, and Betty Lucile, 6.

They were alone in the house when the fire broke out, Mrs. Jarvis being at work in her garden and the father at his place of business.

The mother attempted to enter the house as flames burst from the windows of the kitchen but friends restrained her.

The Jarvis home was four miles from Turlock and no water system strong enough to fight the fire was handy. A water bucket line was formed but was of little use against the flames.

Cause of the blaze was not determined.

Father Fights Weather To See Sick Mail Pilot

BUTTE, Mont., Jan. 20.—UP—Like father, like son.

Faced with a severe storm and suffering from incipient pneumonia, Harry Hollenbeck, air mail flyer, refused to surrender his ship to another pilot and carried on to the end of his journey. Exposure on the flight sent him to the hospital suffering from pneumonia.

A few days later Harry's father, D. S. Hollenbeck, Lenham, S. D., arrived in Butte, en route to his son's bedside at Great Falls. A storm raged northward and air mail flights had been postponed. But Hollenbeck senior insisted on a plane rushing him to Great Falls. He would not listen to advice from airport officials.

The elder Hollenbeck won his point and a few hours later was at his son's bedside.

Be moderate
AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*
By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Fashion revels in the soft, enchanting curves of the modern figure. Don't sacrifice that graceful contour by permitting your eyes to be bigger than your stomach. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When tempted to treat yourself too well, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the modern, alluringly-rounded figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

GARFINKLE'S, MAMMY'S TO BATTLE FOR CAGE HONORS

HIGH CAGERS TO PLAY ALAMEDA TODAY

The varsity and B cagers of Richmond Union high school will clash with A'ameda high school's quintet today in the local high school gymnasium.

Phil Hempler, local high school basketball coach, will put his best varsity warriors on the floor today in an attempt to avenge their defeat Friday night by Hayward high school. The Richmond heavyweights have made a rather poor showing in pre-season contests with eastbay high school aggregations, but they are by no means discouraged by these setbacks.

What appears to be one of the snappiest B outfits in the Alameda County Athletic league will oppose the Alamedans today. The local B's are probably superior to the Richmond varsity and registered the only Richmond victory on last night's card at Hayward.

Today's B game will start at 3:15, and will be followed by the varsity battle at 4 o'clock.

The Richmond Union high school varsity lineup will be as follows: Viano, Scarscella, forwards; Hoefer, center; Degnan, Brook, guards Roveda, Marcos, Passone, Drexel and Baskett substitutes.

The boys who will comprise the local B outfit today will be: Rollino, Boschetti, forwards; T. Wilson, center; Rogers, Santillipo guards; Snodgrass, Johnson, A. Wilson, R. Miller and Corazzo, substitutes.

LaVeque Signs With Giants

Francis LaVeque, Richmond baseball player, has been signed up by the New York Giants and will report to the spring training camp at Clearwater, Fla., it was learned here yesterday.

LaVeque was signed by Bill Cunningham, former Richmond Elks player who is now playing with the Giants.

La Veque played with several Richmond teams in the past as a catcher and also in the outfield. He also played with Napa in the State league last year.

Y. M. D. Cagers Beat San Jose

The Richmond Y. M. D. five swamped the San Jose Y. M. D. boys 36 to 12 recently at the San Jose Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The local athletes were easily superior to the San Jose squad, and had no trouble in piling up a comfortable margin.

The Richmond Y. M. D. lineup was as follows: Fowell, Santaella, forwards; Johnson, center; Abbott, Sprague guards; substitutes Hillier, Black, Crigler, forwards; Moore, center; and Livermore, guard.

TITLE GAME TO BE PLAYED JAN. 30

Garfinkle's cagers winners of the A division championship of the city league, and Mammy's Place, holders of the B division city league title, will tangle in the "game of the year" Jan. 30 at the Richmond Union high school gymnasium. At this time, the members of both league leading squads will be presented miniature gold basketballs by William Stribley, donater of the awards. As preliminary attractions, the Oleum boys will tangle with an outside team not yet decided upon, and the Oleum girls will also meet some eastbay girls' squad.

The championship of the A division of the Richmond city cage league was captured by the Garfinkle's five last night, when they trounced Ben Malik's quintet 31 to 17. With Garfinkle's victorious in last night's contest, the Studebakers hope of competing in the finals vanished into thin air.

The most spectacular contest on last night's city league card was played between the Union Oil squad from Oleum and Furrer's. The final score of this battle was 37 to 35 in favor of Oleum. The margin shifted from one team to another all through the last half, and it happened to be Thomas of Oleum who slipped in a beautiful hole shot to capture the game.

The Mastercraft Roofers lost to the sensational Mammy's Place B division aggregation by a score of 14 to 19. Mammy's Place had a bigger fight on their hands than they had expected, and the Roofers trailed them throughout the game.

First Game

Garfinkle's 31—Gillan 8, Barbieri 10, forwards; Lemkuhl 4, center; Millicivich, G. Gordon, guards substitutes Flynn 7 center; W. Gordon 2, guard.

Ben Malik's 17.—Santael'a 4, Fowell 8, forwards; Johnson 3, center; Abbott, McLaughlin 2, guards; substitute Livermore, at guard.

Second Game

Union Oil of Oleum 37.—Anderson 14, Thomas 9, forwards; Marini 5, center; Atkinson 7, MacDonald, guards; substitute Gonzales 2, guard.

Furrer's 35.—Hall 3, DeBaere, forwards; Kenney 8, center; Lane 10, Baldwin 9 guards; substitute Melin 5, forward.

Third Game

Mammy's Place 19.—Marcos 3, Page 8, forwards; Arnold 8, center; Weeks, O'Connell, guards; substitute Sassone, forward.

Mastercraft Roofers 14.—Jester 4, Damon, forwards; Duncan, 1, center; E. Tandy 2, E. Tandy 3 guards; substitute Russel 4, forward.

Visiting Fives Will Play Local Teams Thursday

Two famed quintets from neighboring bay cities will invade local territory Thursday night in the form of the California Grays and the City of Hayward squad.

Opposition will be offered to New Kay's Haywerdites by a team picked from the local city league teams. The California Grays will meet the local Santa Fe athletes.

Two preliminary contests have also been arranged. The Nationals will clash with the Mastercraft Roofers, while the Santa Fe Renegades will tangle with the Santa Fe Indians.

Seldom has such a splendid and complete basketball card been presented to local cage fans. Richmond enthusiasts will be able to compare their favorite athletes with one of the strongest groups in the eastbay.

Ned Kay is always known as a producer of first-class teams. Santa Fe ought to be able to show the Californians how basketball is played in Richmond, for although not at the top of the city league the railroad men have certainly made a name for themselves during the present season.

The Santa Fe Renegade-Indians contest will start Thursday night's activities at 6 o'clock, and will be followed by the Nationals-Mastercraft clash at 7 o'clock. The Santa Fe will meet the California Grays at 8 o'clock, and the main event will occur at 9 o'clock.

DELAWARE PRO LEADS FIELD AT AGUA CALIENTE MATCH

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexco, Jan. 20.—UP—After a give-and-take battle with old man par in the first round of the $25,000 Agua Caliente golf tournament which opened here today, Ed Dudley, Wilmington Del., professional, found himself at the head of a select field after 18 holes had been played.

The eastern professional climbed into the leading position with a 71, even par for the course, despite a bad first turn. His poor showing going out was nullified by a brilliant exhibition after making the turn round the half way mark.

Forced to take a 37 going out over the brand new course, Dudley came back with a slashing 34, two under par for the second nine. He was aided in his recovery by three birdies which brought cheers from the gallery.

Smith Second

The Delaware player was followed by the veteran MacDonald Smith, professional of Great Neck, L. I., who led with a 72, until Dudley finished a short time after Macdonald had checked in.

Harold Long, young Denver player, and Al Watrous of Detroit were right behind Smith with totals of 73.

Nine of the contestants were next in line with 74's for the first 18 holes. They were Fay Coleman, Los Angeles amateur; Olin Dutra, Los Angeles; Ed Stokes, Denver; Harry Cooper, Buffalo; Charlie Guest, Los Angeles; George Von Elm, Detroit amateur; Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Bobby Cruickshank, Progress N. Y.

Cooper Strong

Cooper kept right on past the 18th green today and played thru to the 27th. He took a 36 for the third nine. Cooper is to be married Tuesday and will not play that day. He will play 27 holes again on Wednesday to catch up with the rest of the field. He took 116 strokes for the 27 holes.

After 18 holes Tuesday, the field will be cut down to the 50 high professionals and ties and the six high amateurs and ties, who will play the last 36 holes. There were 116 players in the field today.

The first day of the richest tournament ever offered to golfers was run off under auspicious weather conditions, but despite the brilliant sun the gallery was not so large as had been expected.

Amateurs Weak

Almost every professional golfer of note was present but the amateur contingent was not so strong.

With the exception of the two Smiths—Horton and MacDonald—the outstanding professionals failed to place very high in the list.

Denny Shute, Columbus, O., winner of the recent Los Angeles Open, had a 76. Others in this group were Abe Espinosa, Chicago, and Leo Diegel, professional at Agua Caliente, who was favored by many for final honors although he entered the tourney with no more knowledge of the trick course than any of the others.

Walter Hagen, British Open title holder who has been in a slump during all the winter season in southern California, improved a bit on Mexican soil. He was far from his one time form, however, and completed the first round with a 78.

SHADE READY FOR ROCHE FIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20—(U.P.)—Dave Shade, Contra Costa county's pride and joy, worked out today for the second time since his arrival from New York, in preparation for his battle with Joe Roche here Friday night.

The Concord middleweight won a decision from Roche in Chicago two months ago, but even Shade admits he didn't do so well. The decision was unpopular with the windy city fans.

"That was a tough fight," Shade said today. "This time I'm ready for him."

Shade arrived in San Francisco Saturday night.

Roche, meanwhile, has been conditioning himself at a local gymnasium for several days. Joe, who hails from San Francisco's North Beach, expressed confidence that he would beat Dave and hoped that the referee will be more charitable than the one that officiated at the last Roche-Shade encounter.

Speedboat May Compete In Duke Of York Matches

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20.—UP—Miss Rioco, champion speed boat owned by James Talbot Jr., may compete for the Duke of York trophy in England this coming season, her owner has announced.

Miss Rioco is powered with a Miller 151 four-cylinder engine. The craft has won the American Bankers' trophy, the Royal Poinciana trophy and the first leg of the coveted Elgin trophy, and several class and trial records.

Amateur Boxers To Meet Tomorrow

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20—(U.P.)—A bronze statuette, a trophy donated by Paddy Dillon, well known fight fan and boxer, will be awarded the winning lightweight in the Far Western amateur boxing tournament, which starts here Wednesday at Dreamland.

A total of 112 boxers in the 135 pound class has signed for the competition, it was announced.

PLANS FORMED FOR LEGION BASEBALL

Arrangements for the coming baseball season were made at a meeting of the American Legion junior baseball commission, department of California, in Richmond Sunday. Walter J. Hicks, of Sacramento is chairman of the committee, which is composed of Harry Burt of Richmond and Dr. Floyd Hanes of Pasadena.

The keynote of the meeting was that "every boy in California who wants to enter the Legion competition must have an opportunity to play."

Competition, it was decided, would be divided into two periods, general and championship.

Hundreds of boys' teams are expected to take the field on April 1, when the general competition starts. The teams may be sponsored by schools, fraternal or commercial organizations.

In the larger cities, where C. I. F. or city recreational play is organized, the Legion will cooperate with such organizations so as not to interfere with their athletic programs. State championship competition will start about July 15, between winning teams of the general competition.

The 22 district champions will be decided by July 14, according to the plans, and the winning district teams will enter into a one-game playoff elimination to determine the five area champions before July 21.

Hicks will have general supervision over the state, and will also have charge of area No. 1, which includes Marin, Solano, Sacramento and Eldorado counties and all counties north.

Burt will have charge of area Nos. 2 and 3, which includes the bay district, the peninsula and San Joaquin county.

Dr. Hanes will manage areas 4 and 5, which includes the district south of the Tehachapi. Play within the district and county leagues, will be directed by other Legion officers.

The championship series between areas 1 and 2, and between areas 4 and 5, are scheduled to take place on July 24, 25 and 26. The winners of these series will toss a coin to determine which team plays area 3 champion on Aug. 1, 2, and 3. The northern and southern victors will then play the California championship series.

Continuing the custom of past years, the department or state champion will play for the Utah-Nevada-California-Arizona regional championship, which entitles the winning team to enter the sectional series for all teams west of the Mississippi river.

The "little world series," as it has become known, will be played in September, between eastern and western teams.

A $50,000 fund set aside for the American Legion by the American and National leagues finances the regional, section and national play-offs.

Yonkers, N. Y. won the national championship in 1926. In 1928, the first year California entered a team, Oakland won the championship. Buffalo, N. Y., won last year.

Opponents Fail To Appear For Soccer Players

The Richmond Soccer club athletes waited long and patiently on Sunday, but the Senior Turnveins failed to appear at Nicholl park. The other half of the scheduled double header was not so disappointing, and the Hakoahs proceeded to conquer the junior Turnvereins by a score of 3 to 2.

The fans were amply repaid by the latter contest for their Richmond-Senior Turnverein disappointment.

The Hakoahs received mighty strong opposition during the first half, but were able to keep the strong Turnverein squad at bay during the last period.

The Richmond-Turnverein game was not a league battle, and the failure of the senior Turnvereins to show up does not place Richmond any higher in the league standing.

Open Season On Elks Lauded By Game Official

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Jan. 20.—UP—Soft-hearted sportsmen may express concern over various open seasons on protected elk, but the fact remains that the elk seem fairly capable of taking care of themselves.

This opinion was voiced the other day by State Game Warden Robert Hill following a survey of Montana hunting conditions. Among other things, the state official said that descriptions of the 'slaughter' on the Highwood game reserve were grossly exaggerated. At the outside, only 70 elk were killed whereas 150 should have been slain to reduce the herd to conform with available forage. When the shooting began on the reserve, elk simply retired into the closed parts of the sanctuary.

The season was also opened on the northern Yellowstone herd of approximately 13,000 animals in order to reduce the number. But hunters could only kill about 20, which is considerably less than the natural annual increase.

Hill pointed out that forage was not available in unlimited quantities and that elk herds could not be allowed to increase indiscriminately.

PEACE SEEN IN HIGH C. I. F. DISPUTE

Officials of the Alameda County Athletic league, a branch of the C. I. F., to which the Richmond Union high school is affiliated, will make a thorough investigation of the Richmond and Hayward high school complication, if a report of the matter is filed with the league officials.

This was the statement made to the RECORD-HERALD yesterday by Dr. George C. Thompson, president of the A. C. A. L.

The Richmond school will continue in the league, however, unless notified otherwise. A game will be played with the Alameda high school basketball team this afternoon at the school.

Dr. Thompson declared yesterday that if the report of the matter is filed with the league, there will be no "snap judgments" by members of the league. Instead, every phase of the matter will be thoroughly gone into before any decision will be reached.

"Justice will be done for both sides," Dr. Thompson declared. "The blame will be placed where it belongs."

B. X. Tucker, principal of the Richmond Union high school and Fred P. Johnson, principal of the Hayward school stated yesterday that they had sent in a report on the matter.

The complications followed a basketball game in Hayward last week between the Richmond and Hayward high schools.

During the game, it is alleged, some of the Hayward high school boys playfully took local rooters' caps. In retaliation, four Richmond boys, who are not connected with the local school, took several electric light bulbs from an arch near the Hayward gymnasium.

They, however, paid for the damage that was done, it was reported.

Friends of the local high school were confident yesterday that the matter will be settled to the satisfaction of both schools involved and that the Richmond school will remain in the C. I. F.

Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble Relieved

2946 Morgan Ave.
Oakland, Cal.
Nov. 19, 1929.
THE FONG WAN HERB CO.
Dear Mr. Fong—I am writing this letter to express my gratitude for the splendid results and benefits I have received from the use of the Chinese Herbs prepared by you.
I had a complication of Liver, Gall-Bladder and Stomach Trouble with sharp, stabbing pains in the lower right side of my Abdomen. The region of the Liver was exceedingly sore and tender; so much so that even loose clothing became irritating and uncomfortable. My Stomach was also very sore to the touch and felt as if there were a lump the size of an egg in it. After meals, food which was very sour and burned the throat, was returned to the mouth.
This condition steadily became worse over a period of a year. During this time, I was treated by two doctors without any appreciable results. Both decided that an operation was necessary.
By good fortune, I came into contact with a man whom you had treated successfully for an Ulcerated Stomach, and he strongly urged me to take your treatment. This I did.
Results were noticeable the very first week, and now, after six weeks, I am entirely free from the terrible stabbing pains and the soreness over my Liver. My digestion is good. The old feeling of lassitude has completely disappeared and I feel much brighter and more energetic than I have for years.
I am most happy to strongly recommend the herbs of the Fong Wan Herb Co. as prepared by you.
Wishing you unbounded success, and again thanking you for what you have done for me, I am
Very cordially yours,
CYRIL MAW.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

"GENERAL CRACK"
BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Princess Eleanora is the decisive pawn in the game of European diplomacy, to decide whether King Leopold shall be emperor or not. Both he and General Crack are bent on winning her hand in marriage. Leopold needs Crack, and reluctantly yields his claim to Eleanora. Eleanora has been sheltered from the world. Ferdinand Gabor, an unscrupulous rascal dismissed by Crack, overtakes her in the woods, and forces his unwelcome attentions on the girl. Crack arrives.

"Monsieur was trying to give them to me," she whispered.

"Pick them up!" Christian commanded Gabor. The Transylvanian hesitated, for Christian spoke as if he were ordering a cur to a kennel, but his habit of obedience was too strong; he stooped easily, and negligently handed the lilies to the other man, remarking slily:

"Forgive me, Highness, I had not understood that my poor gallantries were unwelcome."

One step brought Christian close to him, one second sufficed for him to dash the wet lily bells into his face.

"Begone! Immediately! If I see you again I will have you thrashed!"

Then he recovered his composure instantly and turned his back, with unutterable contempt, on Gabor. The Transylvanian had staggered into the hornbeam hedge; the heavy faceted bezel of Christian's ring had cut his lip and blood mingled with water trickled down to his spruce uniform; he pulled out his handkerchief and pressed it to his twisted mouth; his soul quivered one agony of hate, but he dared risk no second insult; he slipped swiftly away through the tall hedges.

They were planning his marriage.

Christian gazed sternly at Eleanora; he was most bitterly amazed and annoyed by this scene, most of all by his own flaunt of rage.

"Why were you alone?" he frowned.

Eleanora was prepared for reproach; she knew that an indecorum on her part had led to all this unpleasantness; it had been wrong for her to slip away like that—if her father was to know!

She wrung her hands in silence and with terrified eyes pleaded for pity.

"Gabor, of all men!" mused Christian in deep rage; it was incredible. "Did he follow you?"

"I don't know," whispered Eleanora, looking ready to sink on her knees before this stern scrutiny. "I met him in the woods, Monseigneur—only a little way in the woods—if—if you would not tell my father—"

"It is no longer your father's business, but mine," he replied curtly, and set his heel on the lilies Gabor had profaned. "Come, I have been asked to bring you to the Château—I have looked for you—some while—in vain."

Eleanora wished to say something to placate him, but knew of nothing; she thought him even more forboding than her father; how horrible his dark face had been in that flash of time when he had struck the other man—a grinning mask of fury!

"This is the first time that we have been alone together," he remarked moodily and with an accent of deep disappointment that she could not understand. "An ill occasion! Mademoiselle," he added sharply, "will you come to the house?"

As Christian and Eleanora went into the Château, Gabor, still wiping his bleeding lip, was staring at them from behind the statue of Silenus, against the florid plinth of which he leant his trembling body.

Ferdinand Gabor had done with Christian, as completely as Christian had done with him. A long-contained, an envious and jealous hatred had now broken into complete and utter loathing and detestation; as he watched the elegant and rigid figure of General Crack, escorting the reluctant girl into the Château, a complete plan of vengeance flashed into his inflamed mind.

Always rapid and direct in action, he left the Château and rode after Leopold towards Vienna; through all that journey the unstaunchable bleeding of his lip kept fresh his determined hate.

VIII

WHEN they reached the door of the room where Hensdorff and Anhalt-Dessau were closeted, Christian turned and spoke to her, suddenly realizing her part in this.

"I was impetuous," he remarked, frowning in some distress, "I should not have struck that rascal—it was not the moment. Perhaps I frightened you.. You must put it all out of your mind now. You will never see him again. He shall not trouble you any more."

And she noted and was soothed by the extreme softness of his voice. She did not want to enter the room, she did not want to face the two men whom she knew were there, neither Hensdorff nor her father. She drew away.

"No," he said, "you must not run away, you must come with me to your father, Mademoiselle."

She would not look at him and did not want to listen to him, but he forced her, though very graciously and courteously, through the tall door which he had opened, and she found herself in the small private closet of the Duchess, now occupied by Anhalt-Dessau and Hensdorff. She sensed at once a gloomy and sombre atmosphere, full of agitation and fear. Hensdorff looked grim and sarcastic, biting his lower lip and stroking his long, eloquent and pendulous nose. Anhalt-Dessau appeared flustered, frightened, agitated; he was indeed cornered, and hardly knew what to say or do; he very much resented this exchange of bridegrooms and on every count would have preferred Leopold. But Leopold had fled; Leopold had left him in the lurch, at the mercy of these two men. He was scared, and Hensdorff meant he should be scared, by those fatal despatches from Vienna, the account of the break-up of the conference at Brussels, the march of the Allies across the frontier. Across his frontier by now, for all he knew; Hensdorff had said as much. Anhalt-Dessau would be one of the first places to be fallen on. And to whom could he look to defend his territory? Only to General Crack. How could he secure the services of General Crack? Only by giving him his daughter! Otherwise, that mighty soldier would join, not the forces of Leopold, but those of the Allies.

When he looked up with agitated glance to see his daughter entering the room with Prince Christian, the personal aspect of the matter occurred to Anhalt-Dessau for the first time. He wondered stupidly why this successful man was prepared to pay such a stupendous price for Eleanora.

"Eleanora," said Anhalt-Dessau with an effort, "I have been discussing your marriage with these gentlemen, Count Hensdorff and Prince Christian, both of whom are, I think, known to you."

He was making words to cover his own agitation. Hensdorff broke in impatiently. Those despatches were in his pocket; there was really no time to waste.

"Princess Eleanora, your father is telling you that we have just made a matrimonial contract between you and Prince Christian. I hope this will be pleasing to you as it is to His Highness. It is in every way a favorable contract to yourself."

"Yes, that is what we have decided," added Anhalt-Dessau hastily. "These are times of stress, Eleanora, and there has been no space for long negotiations or delicate breakings to you of these affairs. They are settled now."

He paused; it was as if he would have added: "And you must make the best of them." Hensdorff caught up the clumsily broken sentence.

"Prince Christian will tell you of the settlements if you wish to know of them," he remarked, "but I expect, Princess, you are used to leave those things to your father. He is satisfied, and therefore we have taken it that you will be so."

Eleanora was further bewildered; she hardly understood the import of what they said. Her eyes wandered idly to the clock. How late it was—nearly midday! What a long time these men had been talking in this close room! What a long time ago it was since Leopold had ridden away! She rose timidly, to her feet and made a curtsy to her father and whispered:

"Can I go away now, please? Can I go and find the Duchess? I've rather a headache and I don't feel very well. I'd like to talk to you about these things presently but not now."

BIG WHALE WILL ARRIVE HERE TODAY

Although no official reception committee will be on hand this morning the famous San Clemente whale and its baby, the airgest visitors to ever enter our city, will arrive in Richmond shortly after 7 o'clock. Glass inclosed in their big steel private car the mother whale and her 6000 pound baby will be spotted on the Southern Pacific track in front of the Richmond station at Sixteenth street and Macdonald avenue.

This whale was killed in the Pacific ocean early in September and the landing on shore of her massive carcass intact required the greatest skill of one of the largest whaling companies in southern California. Then began the formidable task of embalming the mammal.

Compressed air was blown into the huge body, forcing out the blood. When all the blood had been removed, 2630 gallons of embalming fluid were pumped into the monsters body and so far this has preserved the whale in perfect condition, also the baby whale which suffered the same process.

Everywhere the great sea monster has been exhibited so far, huge throngs have visited the mammal coming even in the rain and snow.

The sight of the San Clemente whale and its small size infant, as well as the lectures that accompany the exhibition are most interesting and instructive. School children will enjoy the exhibit immensely and in many cities class after class have attended in a body

An elaborate lighting system has been installed on the special car of the whale family so those unable to visit them during the day may see and inspect them at night.

The big mammal is something of which persons read in books, but seldom if ever see. For the next six days the citizens of Richmond and the adjoining towns will have an opportunity of seeing and believing.

CAR BOUGHT FOR EL CERRITO POLICE

On the recommendation of Police Commissioner J. R. Beck the El Cerrito city council on Monday night purchased a Ford coupe from David M. Rose of Richmond for the police department at a cost of $650.50.

The other bid submitted was from M. G. Moitoza of San Pablo for $650.50.

Beck recommended the purchase from David Rose as it would be closer to go for service.

Purchase of a safe to cost $125 for the police departments records and valuables was ordered on the recommendation of Police Commissioner J. R. Beck.

Health Commissioner Charles W. Zimmerman was instructed to confer with the Stege Sanitary district in regards to having rubbish cleared from the waterways.

Communication from the East Bay Utility district stating that two of the signers for water service on Fink lane would not be consumers and asking for an additional sum of $468 to lay a six inch water main for servicing the residents on Fink lane was referred to City Attorney J. H. Peters.

According to Water Commissioner Peter Larsen the city appropriated $1295 for the work as requested by the water district and that they should fulfill their agreement. Larsen also stated that he would try and obtain additional petitioners for services to make up for the two not allowed to the required total of 13.

Permission for the use of the Sherman Harding property on the hillside east of Stege Junction for a sign advertising the city was granted the council by Richard Belcher.

Councilman Phil A. Lee will submit an estimate of the cost of the construction of the sign "El Cerrito" in 12 foot letters on the hillside next Monday night.

An estimate of between $28 and $30 for repairing the leaks in the roof of the city hall was accepted by the council and the roof ordered repaired.

Report of Councilman Phil A. Lee that he had received complaints that automobiles were parked on Stockton avenue and Terrace Drive all night and are a menace to motorists was referred to Police Commissioner J. R. Beck.

Suggestion of Councilman Peter Larsen that the city construct a sidewalk on the south side of Stockton avenue for the use of school children as they now have to walk in the street was referred to City Attorney J. H. Peters and City Engineer Ross L. Calfee.

Councilman Charles W. Zimmerman stated that it is questionable whether the city can put in the improvement as the property is now heavily assessed for the paving of the street and it is doubtful if the bonds on the new improvement could be sold.

On a motion of Councilman J. R. Beck the council voted to endorse and further the movement of forming a chamber of commerce in El Cerrito started by some of the merchants a few weeks ago.

Councilman Charles Zimmerman was instructed to get an estimate of the cost of operating an electric heater in the jail as it was the most feasible way of heating the quarters.

were shattered at The Dalles, Ore. when the mercury dropped to 21 degrees below zero. Twenty-two inches of snow added to the discomfort of residents. At Madras, Ore., the thermometers dropped to 34 degrees below zero. Prineville reported 31 below zero, Bend 20 below and Longview, Wash. 14 below.

It was necessary to keep cutters plying through the Williamette and Columbia rivers to prevent them from freezing solid.

Serious fuel shortages were feared if the cold wave persists and many mills have been shut down. Danger of floods also prevailed as a sudden thaw likely will turn the Williamette and Columbia rivers into swirling torrents.

Numerous roads in Oregon, Idaho and Washington were blocked by the drifts.

At Salem the mercury dropped to two below zero, the first time since 1919 that sub-zero weather was recorded.

Southern Idaho towns were snowbound.

NAVY PARLEY WILL OPEN TODAY

this conference tomorrow."

It was then the Secretary of State's turn to speak.

"Our real aim," said Stimson as spokesman for the visiting delegations, "is to remove the secrecy, the rivalry, the mutual irritation which inevitably attend the precedent of competition in armament and to leave each nation free to have an adequate national defense which will not be a source of worry and suspicion to its neighbors.

"Economy is only an important by-product to that end.

"Mainfestly if any one of us leaves this conference feeling that his country has been coerced into an unfavorable agreement, our chief purpose will not have been attained. A sense of injury will remain as a rankling sore to plague our mutual relations in future years."

To allay any fears by smaller nations that the United States and Britain had agreed to wield a "big stick" over their heads, Stimson referred directly to Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald's visit to Washington.

"His visit was neither intended to, nor did in any way negotiate changes in the official relations of the two countries," the secretary of state said.

The dinner at the Savoy was followed by a government reception to all delegates and other guests at Lancaster House, the last social function before the conference begins.

Earlier in the day the delegations spent an hour and 45 minutes with Premier MacDonald and had a 15-minute visit with King George at Buckingham Palace.

They agreed to elect MacDonald chairman at Tuesday's plenary session. At the completion of the king's speech and those of the principal delegates—which will be broadcast by radio over an international network—the conference will adjourn until 10 a. m. Thursday, when it will reassemble at St. Jame's Palace to get down to business.
